Background & SGMA 101

Tania Carlone, Facilitator, Consensus Building Institute (CBI)

Drought-Inspired Law: Manage Groundwater

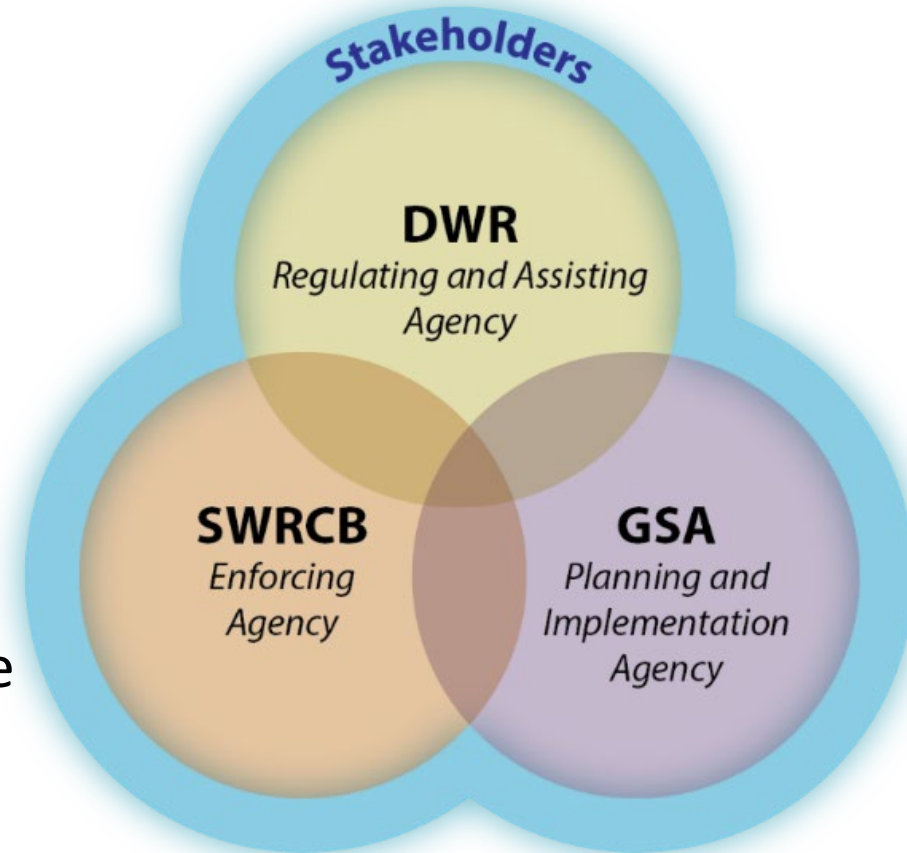

2014: Sustainable Groundwater Management Act (SGMA)

Created a framework to:

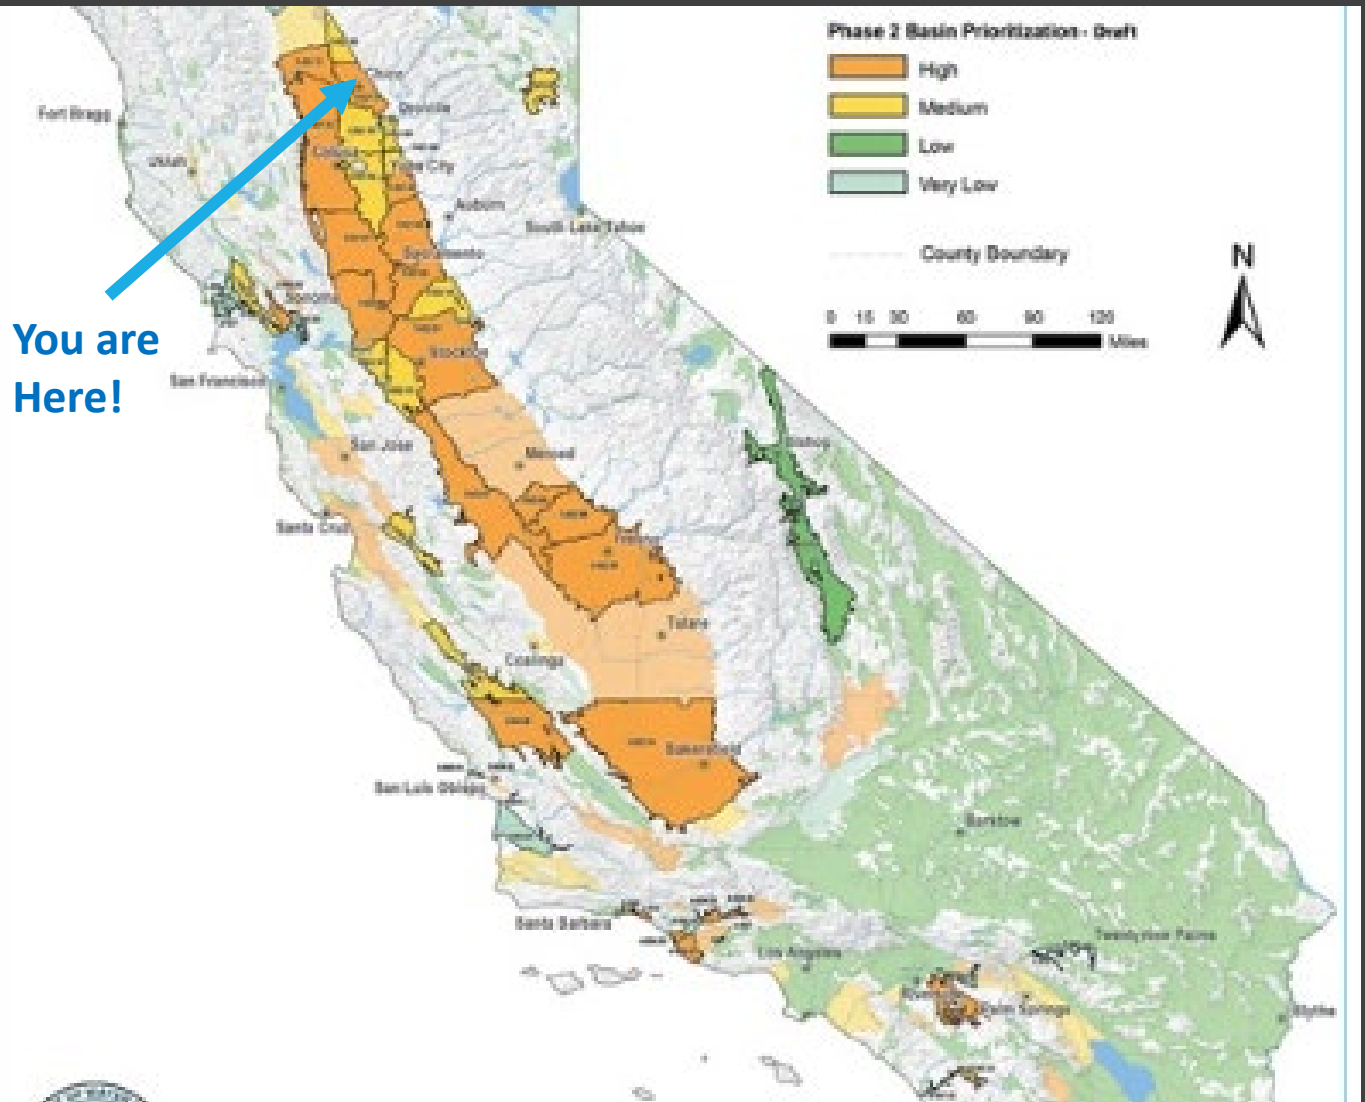

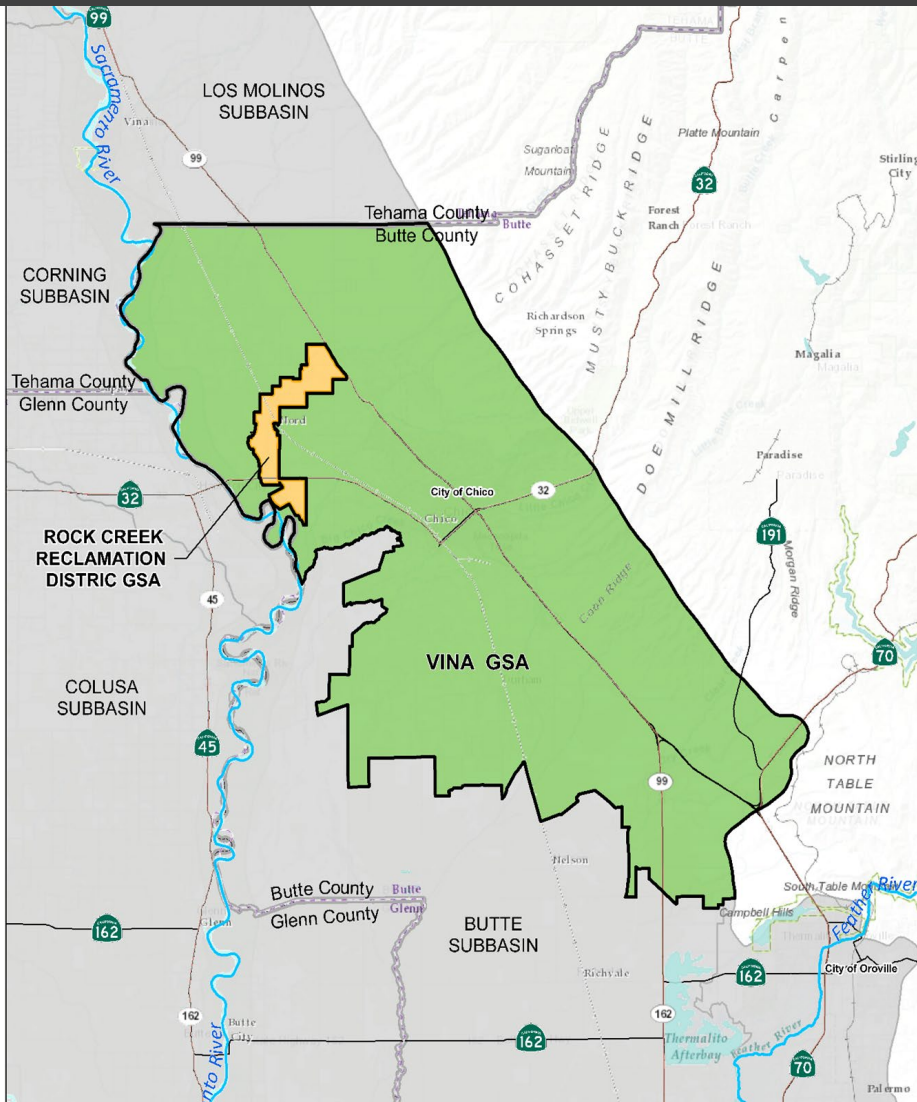

- Assess subbasin conditions
- Craft long-term plans
- Implement solutions
- Achieve sustainability by 2042 (20 years)

Carrot vs. Stick:

- Local control if plan is credible
- State intervention (high costs) if plan inadequate

SGMA is a Statewide Effort

The Road to Sustainability

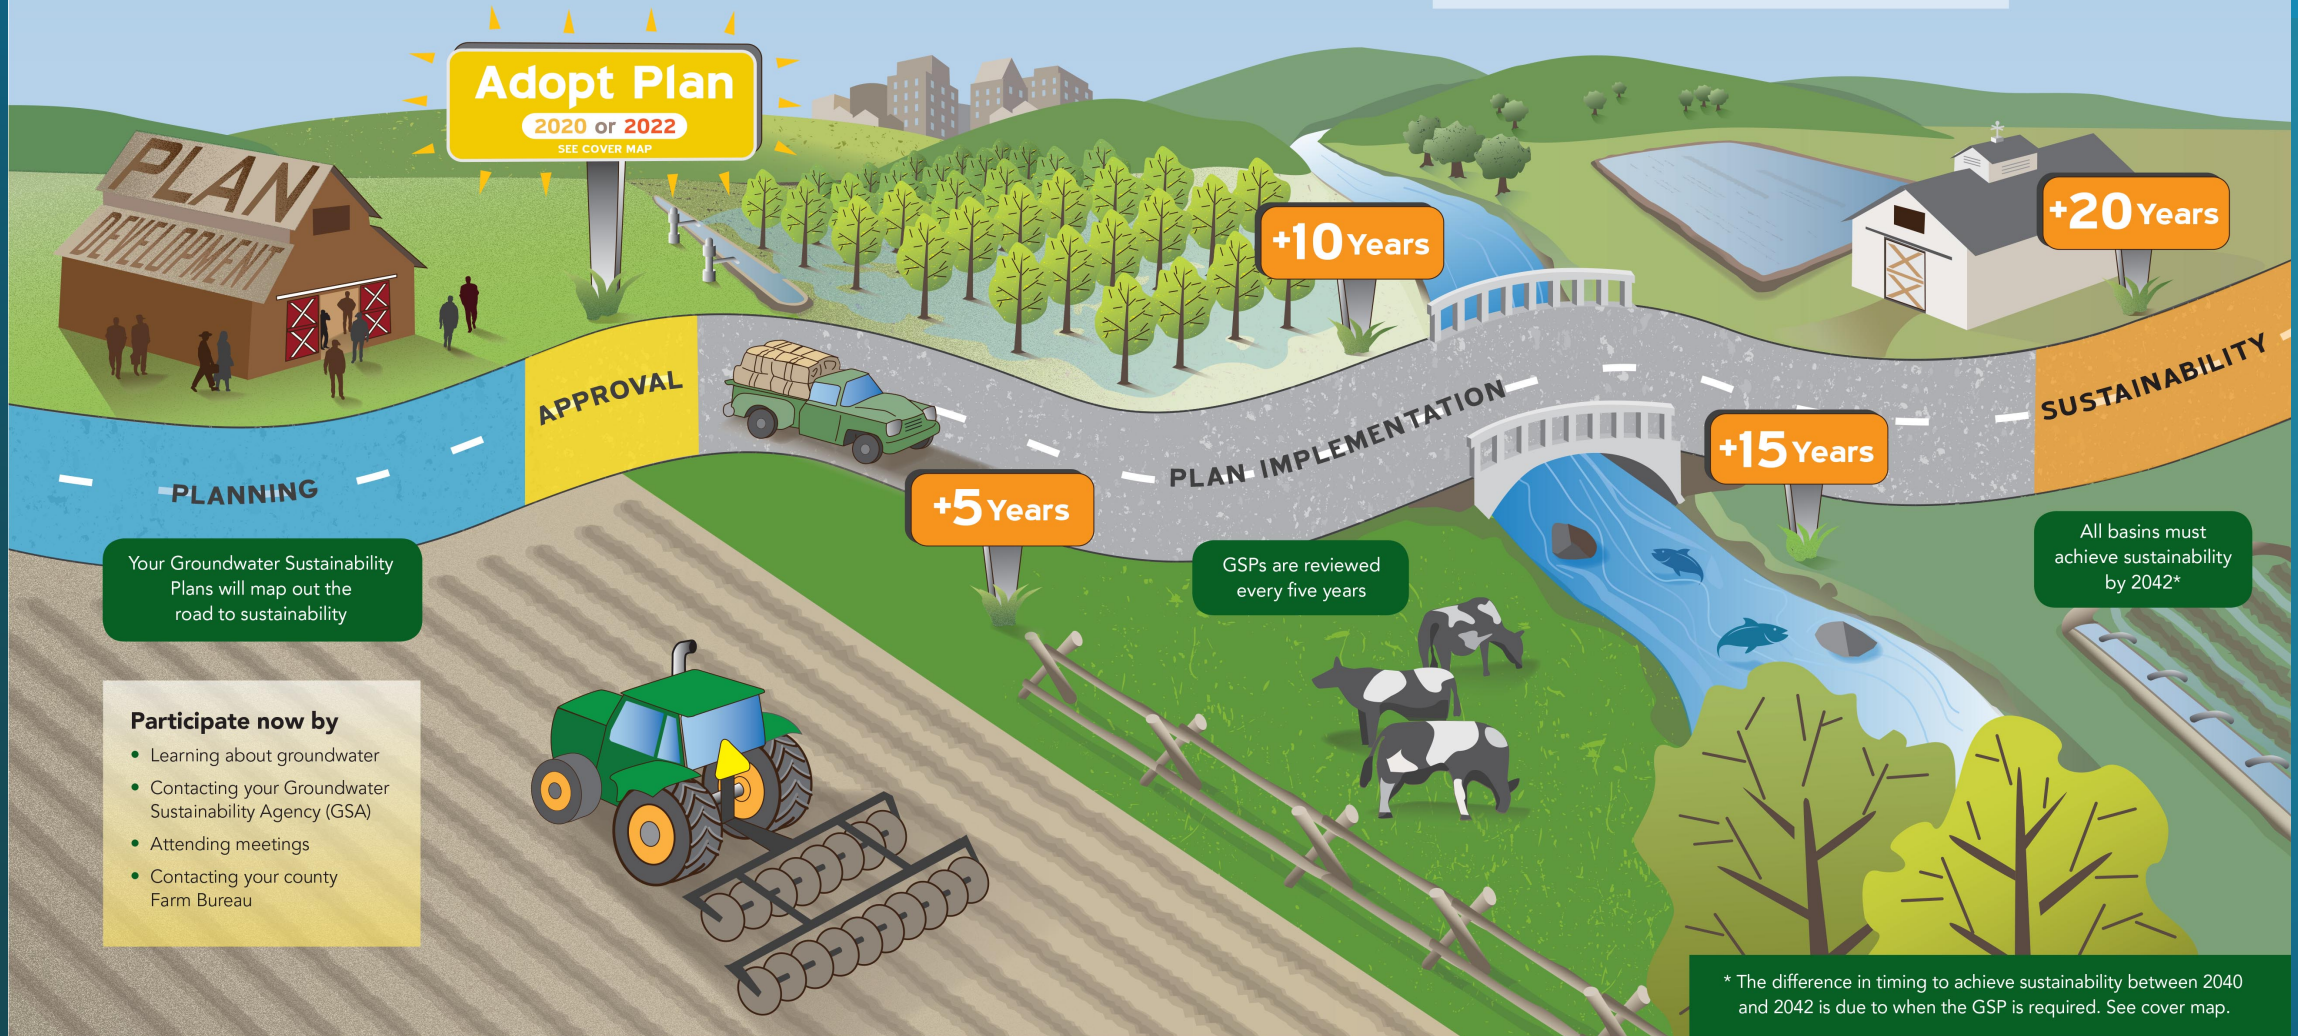

Learn and Engage!

Participate now to represent your interest. SGMA stresses local group formation, local plans and local management.

SGMA plans will reflect local conditions and can include local solutions. Once approved by the state, your local plan represents a commitment to future actions.

Let's be clear:

- SGMA will affect your groundwater pumping
- SGMA establishes new responsibilities to share groundwater
- SGMA will change how we use land and water
- SGMA does not change water rights
